NEW WORLD WHITE WINES

“New World” means everything else besides Europe and refers to some generalities about what you can expect from your wine. With warmer climates, the grapes are able to ripen to a greater degree. Uninhibited by millenniums of tradition, the New World is innovative in their wine growing and wine making techniques. These wines are often labeled by grape instead of region, unlike the Old World.

OLD WORLD WHITE WINES

“Old World” means everything European, but the term conveys so much more about what you’re drinking. With a cooler climate than the rest of the wine world, these wines tend to have more acid and are driven by “terroir” or a sense of place which is one reason why they are typically labeled by region instead of grape.

Generally, wines from each region are meant to be paired with food from the area.

The 110,000 vineyards are broken up into 5 major regions: Chablis (furthest North), Côte d’Or (Further divided into Côte de Beaune and Côte de Nuits), Côte Chalonnaise, Macônnais and Beaujolais (home of the Gamay grape). Each region classifies the quality of their wine differently. Burgundy classifies the quality of wine based on the vineyard in which the grapes were grown instead of the producer. When assessing the value of the wine, the region and vineyard are the most important aspects.

BORDEAUX

The region of Bordeaux, France is situated in the South-West of France on the Atlantic Coast along the banks of the Gironde River. There are 5 primary grapes of Bordeaux: Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, Cabernet Franc, Malbec and Petit Verdot. Along the right bank of the river there is a higher concentration of clay in the soil. Clay retains more moisture so it is best suited to grow Merlot based wines. The primary regions of the right bank of Bordeaux are Saint-Émilion, Pomerol and Fronsac. Along the left bank of the river there is a higher concentration of gravel and rock, which has better drainage so it is most suitable to growing Cabernet Sauvignon based wines. The left bank of Bordeaux is separated into 2 major areas: Médoc (to the North) and Graves (to the South).

RHÔNE VALLEY

The Rhône Valley is split into 2 major areas: Northern Rhône and Southern Rhône. Northern Rhône is situated along the banks of the Rhône river and focuses on only 1 red (Syrah) and 3 white grapes (Viognier, Roussanne and Marsanne).

Syrah from Northern Rhône is the gold standard to which all other Syrah is measured and is sometimes co-fermented with white grapes grown in the region. Southern Rhône is spread out over a large area with a very different Mediterranean (vs. Continental) climate. The king of Southern Rhône is Grenache which is usually blended with Syrah, Mourvèdre, Cinsault or the many other grapes (red and white) grown in the area.

NEW WORLD RED WINES

“New World” means everything else besides Europe and refers to some generalities about what you can expect from your wine. With warmer climates, the grapes are able to ripen to a greater degree, meaning the fruit is going to drive the “flavor bus.” Uninhibited by millenniums of tradition, the New World is innovative in their wine growing and wine making techniques.
